A Manly Voice on Matters Gay and Christian

BY AUSTIN RUSE
A gay guy gets up in the morning, does something, and nobody writes about it. Now that would be news. Will we ever see that day when we as a...

Media Bias Over Papal Canonizations

BY KENNETH D. WHITEHEAD
The satisfaction and indeed joy that Catholics can derive from the double canonization of Pope-Saints John XXIII and John Paul II cannot be significantly compromised by the objections that some...

The Apostle of the Rockies: Fr. Pierre-Jean De Smet, SJ

Every year on the Feast of the Assumption, Catholics of native descent hold a powwow at Idaho's oldest building, Sacred Heart Mission in Cataldo. For more than 150 years the Coeur d'Alene have handed down the story of the Jesuit missionary who healed their chief's daughter and brought the gospel to their people. This annual [...]

Sentiment Trumps Reason as Judges Impose Gay 'Marriage'

BY JAMES MATTHEW WILSON
At this hour, we all bear witness to the spectacle of laws accurately defining marriage being dismantled in order to establish a rhetorical equivalence between genuine marital unions and those...

The Urgency of the Gospel

BY TERRY POLAKOVIC
Mariam Yahia Ibrahim Isbaq is 27 years old. She is eight months pregnant. Last week, she was sentenced to be beaten and then executed in the Sudan. Her crime is...

The Pope and the Patriarch in Jerusalem

BY GABRIEL S. SANCHEZ
This coming Sunday, May 25, Pope Francis is scheduled to meet the Eastern Orthodox Church's Ecumenical Patriarch (EP) Bartholomew at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem in order...

The Reasonableness of Religious Belief

BY RACHEL LU
I have always been a believer. Among other reasons, that's because I think rationality demands it. When I talk about "belief" here, I mean it in a very broad sense...
